

INTRODUCTION:

Uncover the lies and hidden ideas that have motivated a counterproductive existence.

At the root of every self-destructive behavior is a lie that we've believed about God, ourselves or the world around us. We often hold inner convictions based on our experiences; these experiences motivate our behaviors. We need to get to the bottom of "the why" behind our reality in order to unlock the prison in our minds that is restricting our movement.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS:

1. What stood out most to you from this week's conversation entitled "Uncover"?
2. Think back as far as you can. Who or what were some of the major influences during your childhood?
3. This week we discussed a conversation that took place between the serpent, Adam and Eve. When reading that story, what was your first indication that the serpent's intentions were impure? Can you think of a time in your life where you sensed that the intentions of a counterpart were not pure? Discuss the red flags.
4. Of the 6 lies discussed in this week's sermon, which one resonated the most and is a particular battle for you? What are some other lies that you've encountered and what Godly truths are you using to fight with?
6. This battle was never intended to be fought on your own. Discuss with your group ways in which they can pray and support you on this journey toward complete freedom from the hidden lies of satan.

WEEKLY JOURNAL REFLECTION:

Meditate on John 8:32 and John 16:13 and thank God for the Spirit of truth that guides you and makes you free. In your quiet space, ask God to show you areas in your life that have been motivated by the enemy's deception. As you are made aware of these areas, do not fall into condemnation or morbid introspection; instead, celebrate the graciousness of God as he gently ushers you into His truth that brings life! Don't forget to complete your weekly journaling and to check out the "Expert Roundup". All of these resources can be found at www.geremydixon.com.
